Abstract : Using the Speaker first-hand experience as a conservation expert and a former army sergeant, the Speaker takes you across the world to look at historical examples of historical military architectural heritage from WWI to the Cold War era. [作為一位保育專家及前陸軍士官，本講座的講者會以第一手經驗為大家講解由一戰至冷戰期間，專門為戰爭而設計的各國各類軍事建築。]

Speaker: Dr. Lee Ho Yin

Associate Professor in Architectural Conservation, the University of Hong Kong

Dr. Lee Ho Yin co-founded the postgraduate and undergraduate programmes in architectural conservation at The University of Hong Kong. Before joining HKU in 1999, he was an Associate Director of an architectural practice, and has been involved in architectural projects in Hong Kong, Indonesia, Mainland China and Singapore. A well-published academic and an experienced practitioner in built-heritage conservation, he has been appointed by government agencies in Hong Kong, Mainland China and overseas as an expert advisor or a consultant for conservation projects and the designation and monitoring of UNESCO World Heritage Sites. He has also been appointed to a number of heritage conservation statutory boards and committees, including the Hong Kong Government's Antiquities Advisory Board, Tai Kwun Advisory Committee, Tai Kwun Heritage Working Group (as Chairman), and Urban Renewal Authority Board of Directors (as Non-Executive Director). In 2017, he was cited in the award certificate for the highest UNESCO conservation award for the "Blue House Cluster" revitalization project.
